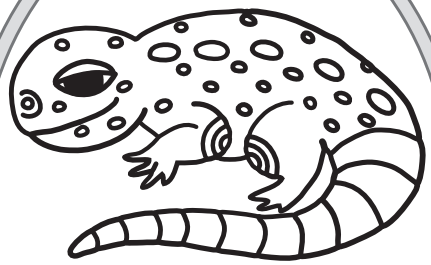
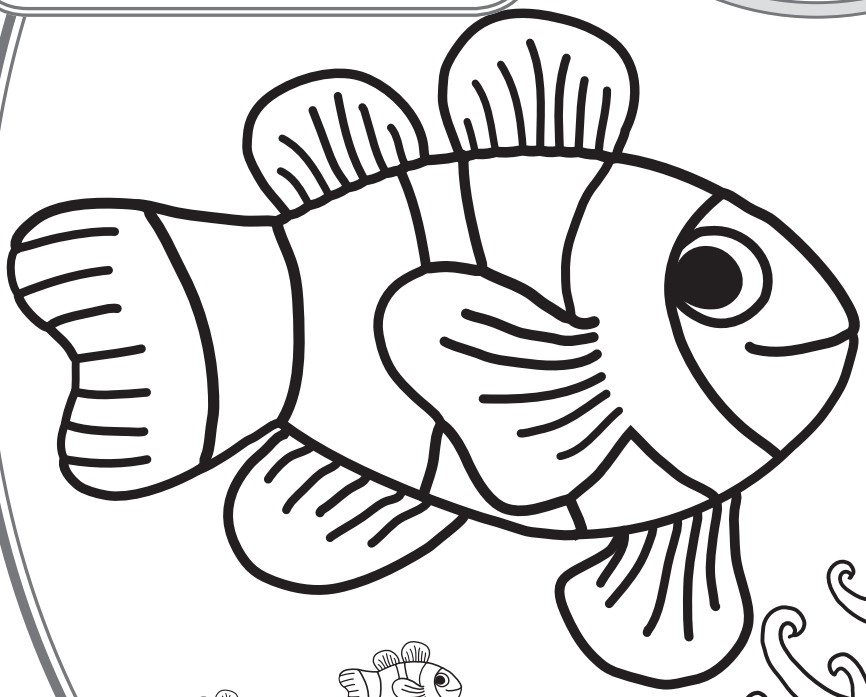
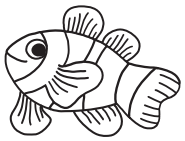
Gender in Nature

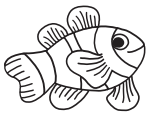


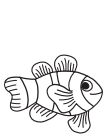
Bear: Many Grizzly, Black, Brown and Polar Bears have bodies that are both boy and girl at the same time. Native Americans have many old stories about bears who are "male mothers."

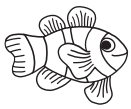
Hawaiian Gecko: These geckos are all girls. There are no boys. More all-girl species live in the South Pacific, French Polynesia and the Marianas Islands near New Guinea.

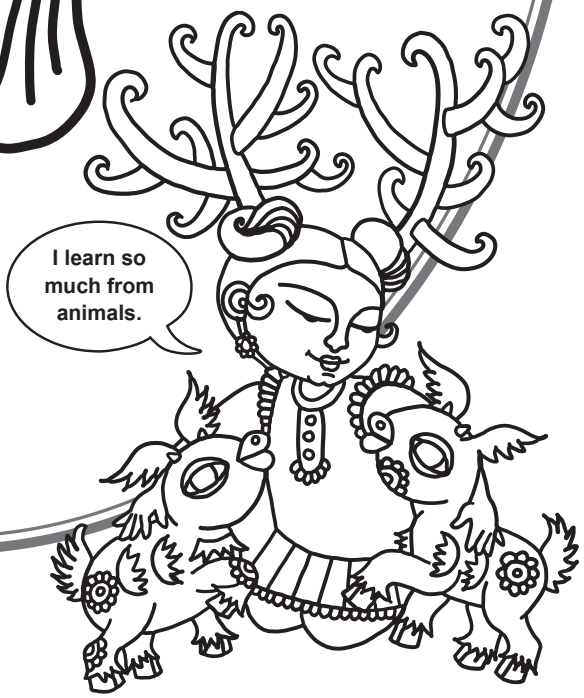












Clown Fish: The girl Clown Fish body is larger than the boy body. And if the girl goes away and leaves the boy Clown Fish with the little fishes, he changes his body into a girl Clown Fish.

© 2010 by Maya Gonzalez | from the Gender Now Coloring Book | Reflection Press | www.reflectionpress.com

Fish, Reptiles, and Bugs

Snail: All snails are both boy and girl at the same time and they have fabulous swirly shells!

Butterfly: This amazing butterfly was found in China with one boy wing and one girl wing. What an outfit!

Garter Snake: Some boy Garter Snakes can make the same perfume as the girl snakes and act the same too. Girly snake!

© 2010 by Maya Gonzalez | from the Gender Now Coloring Book | Reflection Press | www.reflectionpress.com